

On Rights & Wrongs

The Centre should reconsider its draft Bill on transgender rights

It will be a travesty of its avowed objectives if the proposed legislation to protect the rights of transgender persons is not sufficiently rooted in a rights based approach. News that the Centre has brushed aside a parliamentary standing committee's report and plans to introduce the Transgender Persons (Protection of Rights) Bill without changes is a disappointment. The process of recognising the rights of the community and seeking to protect it by legislation gained momentum in 2014, when the Supreme Court gave a landmark verdict in the NALSA case. The court recognised the community as a third gender entitled to the same rights and constitutional protection as other citizens. It called for an end to discrimination based on gender against those who do not conform to the gender assigned to them at birth. Besides this negative right against discrimination, the court ruled that transgender persons had a positive right to make decisions about themselves, express themselves and participate in community life. It directed the government to accord them 'socially and educationally backward' status so they could benefit from affirmative action. In 2014, a private member's Bill moved by DMK MP Tiruchi N. Siva was passed in the Rajya Sabha. In the Lok Sabha, the government introduced its own Bill, which was referred to the Standing Committee on social Justice and Empowerment.

The Standing committee, in its July 2017 report, suggested some modifications and additions to the draft. In particular, it disagreed with the definition of 'transgender' in the draft Bill and wanted modification to bring it in line with global norms. The Committee felt that the definition violated the principle that transgender persons have a right to self-identification of their gender. Activists and experts have also rightly pointed to the absence of any reference to the implications of criminal and civil laws that are based on the traditional gender binary. While provisions on equality and non-discrimination would promote equal opportunity, in the process the real benefit of reservation in jobs should not be denied. Social legislation should not be merely benevolent; rather, it should be imbued with an approach that extends to the marginalised sections the freedom, dignity and autonomy that other citizens enjoy. In the domain of legislation, disagreements over drafts are natural. It is up to the government of the day to adopt an inclusive approach towards divergent opinions and come up with the best law possible. Ignoring the opinions of experts and parliamentary committees does not help the process. The Centre should revisit its draft and incorporate the inputs of the standing committee and an expert panel that submitted a report in 2014.

Words	Kind	Meaning
Travesty		spoof, ridicule, burlesque, exaggeration, force, mockery, perversion, satire
Avowed		sworn, professed, accepted, admitted, affirmed
Brushed		caress, thick, shove, kiss, scrape, ski, smooth, sweep
Verdict		answer, award, conclusion, decision, decree, finding, opinion, ruling
Recognised		accepted, identified, known, perceived, remembered, sanctioned, allowed

Discrimination	bigotry, favouritism, hatred, inequity, injustice, intolerance, prejudice
Accord	deal, pact, reconciliation, accordance, concert, concord, conformity
Global	comprehensive, international, overall, universal, all round
Binary	double, binate, dual, twice, paired
Benevolent	benign, caring, compassionate, generous, humane, philanthropic
Imbued	inculcate, ingrain, instill, leaven, pervade, steep, suffuse
Autonomy	freedom, self-determination, self-government, self-rule, liberty, sovereignty
Divergent	atypical, conflicting, contradictory, contrary, different, desperate, dissimilar
Revisit	call, frequent, return, stay, visit often
Incorporate	absorb, assimilate, blend, consolidate, cover, embody, fuse, integrate, merge
Expert	adopt, adroit, deft, experienced, skilled, trained

South Africa's ANC must seize the chance to pull away from the Zuma cabal

This month South Africa will have a rare opportunity to break away from the difficult political legacy of corruption and governance failures that have blighted its post-apartheid years. At a conference during December 16-20, the Africa National Congress will pick its candidate for party leader, and that person will go on to replace 10-year incumbent President Jacod Zuma. Whoever Mr. Zuma hands over the reins of power to will be the favourite to become the country's next President in 2019. But he or she will also inherit a troubled political system and a nervous, gloomy economy. Steadily rising unemployment, now nearly touching 28%, has been the chief characteristic of what some describe as Mr. Zuma's "scandal-ridden decade" at the helm of the ANC. This has been, by most accounts, a period during which allegations of grand corruption and cronyism multiplied exponentially. Promising to root out this pervasive rot in institutional quality is one of two leading candidates : Deputy President Cyril Ramaphosa, a policy centrist and firm member of the party's constitutionalist wing. The other serious candidate in the reckoning is Nkosazana Dlamini-Zuma, Mr. Zuma's ex-wife who was a minister across several cabinets and chair of the African Union.

Ms. Dlamini Zuma, if she prevails, is expected to muddy the prospects of any investigation into alleged murky financial dealings between Mr. Zuma's son and three brothers of the wealthy, Indian origin Gupta family of South Africa, owners of a massive business conglomerate that controls stakes in the computer equipment, media and mining industries. She is also expected to be the candidate of continuity inasmuch as she will echo Mr. Zuma's call for 'radical economic transformation" and continue policies that are ostensibly aimed at redistributing control of resources to the nations' relatively impoverished black majority. Either way, her nomination will boost the forces of "state capture," or economic rent seeking built on the marketization of the South Africa state itself. Already, there are 783 counts of corruption relating to a 1999 arms deal pending against Mr. Zuma, yet no charges have been pressed. Similarly, despite reams of evidence against the Guptas in a report by a former Public Protector, no enforcement action has been forthcoming. According, to Pravin Gobardhan, who was fired as Finance Minister in March 2017, about $15 billion “has been looted” owing to undue influence of private interests over public institutions. Yet even if Mr. Ramaphosa triumphs at the party conclave, the troubles of the ANC may be far from over. With its overall popularity sliding, the party will have to work hard to bring in the next generation of leaders, with a greater political stature, if it wishes to realise a greater collective destiny for South Africa.

Words	Kind	Meaning
Break away		escape, flee, fly, leave, quit, runaway, split
Legacy		estate, gift, tradition, endowment, bequest, devise, heirloom
Governance		administration, control, law, politics, authority, bureaucracy, ministry, power
Blighted		mar, taint, blast, crush, damage, dash, decay, injure, spoil, wreck
Apartheid		discrimination, racism, separation
Incumbent		binding, necessary, compelling, urgent
Reins		curb, bit, brake, bridle, deterrent, governor, halter, harness, line, restriction
Inherit		acquire, derive, obtain, receive, succeed, take over, get, accede
Troubled		agitated, anxious, bothered, concerned, confused, distraught, distressed
Nervous		afraid, annoyed, apprehensive, edgy, fussy, hesitant, spooked, timid, volatile
Allegations		accusation, charge, claim, plea, statement
Cronyism		civility, deference, deigning, disdain, insolence, patronizing, stooping
Pervasive		common, inescapable, omnipresent, prevalent, rife, universal
Rot		blight, decay, decomposition, deterioration
Reckoning		calculation, estimation, check, ciphering, estimate, figuring

Prevail	abound, beat, overcome, prove, reign, succeed, triumph, win, preponderate
Muddy	dirty, dull, filthy, flat, gloomy, marshy, sloppy, sodden, soggy, swampy
Prospect	anticipation, chance, expectation, forecast, future, hope, likelihood
Murky	cloudy, dark, dim, dirty, dismal, dreary, fuzzy, misty, muddy, nebulous
Conglomerate	amassed, assorted, blended, clustered, massed, melded, mixed, motley
Stake	pale, paling, picket, post, rod, spike, stave, stick
Inasmuch as	because, in so far as, making allowance for, seeing that, since, while Ostensibly	evidently, officially, seemingly, supposed by
Impoverished	barren, destitute, distressed, indigent, needy, poverty stricken, strapped
Ream	batch, bundle, scad, stack ton
Undue	disproportionate, extreme, improper, inappropriate, inordinate, needless
Conclave	confab, powwow, assembly, meet, parley
Slide	accelerate, drift, drop, fall, flow, glide, move, shore, skate, skid, slump
Destiny	circumstance, future, inevitability, intention, prospect